There is no subdivision under the heading “universal successions, as there is under the heading “particular successions”,” between “mortis causa successions” and “inter vivos successions”. That’s so because the only forms of universal succession recognized by Louisiana law are all “mortis causa” successions.